MONMOUTH AND SARATOGA-LITTLE MINCH WINS AT LONG BRANCH.

A SMALL FIELD BEATEN EASILY ON A SLOW TRACK.

Although at any other track yesterday's attendance at Monmouth would have seemed large, in comparison with the crowds of previous days this year it appeared The air was hot and heavy, and many racegoers are evidently waiting for Champion Day, Sat-urday, August 11, which is expected to be the best of the season at Monmouth. But the Champion Stakes is likely now to prove a practical walk-over for Firenzi, with the only contest for second place. is certain that The hard will not start, as his off hind eg is still badly swollen, and he is very lame. It is possible that he may not run again this year. Terra Cotta is not expected from Saratoga for this race, while Elkwood is retired by lameness. Kingston may but he never was of much ac-at any distance over a mile and quarter. Eurus, Surinam, Connemara and one or two others may, perhaps, run in the Champion for a mile and a half will meet Mr.
Haggin's great filly. The Junior Champion, however, will make amends. The Dwyers will send down Oregon, who is doing fast work at Saratoga; the Western wonder, Proctor Knott, will take part; Brookdale Stable will be represented by Mr. THIRD RACE-EATONTOWN STAKES. ALL AGES. Withers's best, and Mr. Belmont will probably run Lady Margaret. The field will include Green Mor-ris's Tipetaff, the best of Captain Brown's lot, and ething from Montana Morrissey's stable, although nfortunately French Park was never entered. The work of the starter, the handleapper, the judges the management generally was admirable yesterday, but the spectators saw much vile riding. Shauer on Shotover in the first race and Chemise in the second; Donohue on Bradford in the third and Grenadier in the fifth; Littlefield on Lady Primrose in the Eatontewn, and Eilke on Favor in the fourth race, were conspicuous for lack of sense and skill. With a few honorable exceptions. American jockeys are the densest lot of blundering pobles that ever got enormously excessive pay for Herly unfatelligent and incompetent work. It was profitable day for the betting ring, the bookmakers' pockets being filled by the errors and blunders of the lockeys. The first race fell to an outsider with light reight, Niagara, with the favorite Telle Doe, well ridden by Garrison, in second place. Shotover would have had a great chance if well handled. It has been have had a great chance if well handled. Perhaps this said that Telle Doe cannot run in mud. Perhaps this explains her defeat. The track was dusty on top, but heavy and sticky just below the surface, and all the

In the second race Mr. Withers's filly Chemise was ich fancied by the shrewdest judges of form, but shauer forced the pace with her so fast in the first half mile in the heavy track that she had nothing left for a finish, and Mr. Haggin's Ransom, brilliantly ridden by Garrison, won easily, while Shauer even threw away the place with Chemise, Bill Barnes getting it by a head. Raceland and Aurelia were withdrawn from the Eatontown Stakes, and Little Minch was the favorite. The judges properly decided that this ill-tempered and vicious, though extremely fast horse should not be allowed to delay the start unreasonably, interfere with the chances of the other and exhaust the patience of the public, so they announced on the official blackboard that Little Minch should have four fair trials, and then if he did not move off should be left at the post. Fortunately third offort was successful, with all the horses mile, with Bradford running second, and Earus thirdLittle Minch lying back, but in the homestretch Covington brought up Little Minch at the furlong post with such an electric rush that he had the field soundly beaten in an instant, and was enabled to pull the horse to a slow carster and still cross the line a victor. Earus was ridden by Garrison, as Appleby & Johnson had intended to pul Hayward on Bradford, but he could not waste to the weight, and they engaged Donohue, who seems to have lost all the skill, energy and courage which he once possessed. His riding was pitiful.
Littlefield does much good work, but he made as bad a mess with Lady Primrose as could be. The experts believed that she would run second, at least, and backed her next to Little Minch. In her last previous race, which was brallantly successful, she led all the way and won easily. Littlefield, with fuconceivable idiocy, in the Eatontown pulled her back violently far behind the field, choking her, breaking up her stride, and giving her no change to great any string out Bela and almost fouling leaders at any time in the race. What in the world could have been the matter with the boy! This was no way to ride N. G. Lorillard's br. g. Retribution, aged, 13%, N. G. Lorillard's br. g. Retribution, Retribu this fast mane, as has been shown a score of times.

She never saw the day when she could finish with Little Minch's speed in the final hundred yards. Hence ber only chance was to go out and take the lead and stay there if she could. The idea of guiling her behind Little Minch and trying to beat him in the last hundred yards was only fit for an occupant of a cell for the violently insane on Ward's Island. Garrison rode to start kindly, he would be one of the best horses in the world at a mile or less, for his speed is enormous and he can run on any kind of a track.

In the fourth race Favor was the favorite, but Cambyses and Arctino were heavily backed, both straight and place. If McLaughlin had been at Monmouth to ride Favor he might have won, but little Elike could never do justice to this suiky and create horse. McLaughlin always knew exactly how to time his run with Favor, and could get more speed out of him than any other fockey could. Elike began riding him much too early and he suiked in the last furfong. There were long odds against Ordfamme, who had been seen in public only once before this year, in the Brooklyn Jockey Club Handicap, in which he ran poorly and fell lame. But Rowe had got him into perfect condition, and although he was overlooked by owners, trainers and the general public, he won a handsome race, with the unlucky Cambyses second

If Little Minch had a kind temper, so that he could be to start kindly, he would be one of the best horses in handsome race, with the unlucky Cambyses second as usual.

While Littlefield had tidden Lady Primrose wildly, he handled Oriflamme well. Covington rode Little Minch ably, but he tried to ride Arctino as if Arctino were Little Minch. Now Arctino has not a trace of Little Minch's immense speed. He is a rater and his only chance is in keeping up a strong pace from the start. But Covington pulled him behind the field and then tried to come with a rattle in the homestretch, making a ridenious failure. Out of seven starters in this race three were gray, and two of the three ran first and second.

There was heavy plunging on Grenadler in the seling race, although the field was large, but he had stretch, making a ridiculous failure. Out of seven starters in this race three were gray, and two of the three ran first and second.

There was heavy plunging on Grenadler in the selling race, although the field was large, but he had Jonah Donohue in the saddle, who rode him as if he had just escaped after a three days' residence in the whale's belly, and was still sick at his stomach. So Grenadler failed oven to get a place. Some severe critics sniffed the air and thought they detected a stront odor of something dead and rotten, but perhaps it was only the ancient and fish-like smell that clong to Donohue's garments after his summer visat for recreation to the interior of the whale. But the smell became noisome and awful in the steeplechase. It is not likely that these pestiferous abominations will be permitted at Monmouth Park after this year. Retribution was a strong favorite, but the wild-eyed Eiphin concluded to run straight and won casily. He could not have won tensily, however, even if he could have won at all, if the fellow who rode Montmore had done his duty. It was amusing to watch this man's tribus, while he was riding in front of the jedges at the water-pump he made a tremendous show of hogging, riding and forcing his horse, but when at a distance from them he loaffed and lounged along, and discouraged overs effort of the horse. When he had got Mentmore nearly a furlong behind the first horse and only a short distance remained to run he began to make a show of trying to get up. But any careful observer through race glasses could see that his pretended whipping was a sham until he had got over the last jump and was approaching the judges. Then in order to deceive them he hit the horse a few cuts and let him run into third place.

The prestige of Liftle Much drove Kaloolah, Raceland, Aurelia and Fitzroy out of the race. The judges announced that Little Munch would be given four trials, when, if he persisted in his usual bad behavior, he would have to take his chances of being left at the post. Resenting such treatment, he would have gone at the first effort had not Lady Primrose refused to stir. At the second attempt Lady Prinrose refused to stir. At the second attempt he betted neroes the track and started toward the head of the homestretch. At the third break, after dragging Jin Scipio Africanus through the dust, he got off last to as fair a start as cauld have been made under the circumstances. Volunteer made the pace for six furlongs and gave way to Bradford, who led into the homestretch. Eurus drew out in the last furlong, and was halled as the victor, when out in the last furlong, and was halled as the victor, when Minch came by him like the "West Coast Flyers" and wen under a pull by half a length. ... 108 Satisfaction ... CONDITION OF THE BARD.

The Bard conspired with a Tribune reporter yester-day to get out of his box and have a frolic on the grass while Trainer Huggins wasn't looking, but the con-spiracy was discovered and the champion had to spend another day in the stable. He hasn't been out since he fell lame on Thursday, and Mr. Huggins can't tell when he'll give him another breather. Since Saturday the pride of Chesterbrook has become wonderfully sober and thoughtful. His off hind leg is still ban daged from hock to fetlock, and he moves it about The swelling and inflammation rather cautiously. have not yet subsided sufficiently for the veterinarian to discover how seriously the tendons are affected by Stakes. Mr. Huggins says that not until The Bard is given another trial can anything positive be told spector Byrnes will have charge of the force. about the extent of his injury. He may walk well enough about the stable and show no sign of a lameness which might stop him in a race. The trainer is inclined to regard the injury in a very serious light, and does not hesitate to say that it may cause the permanent retirement of The Bard from the turf. Bard's action while racing is peculiar in that he throws so much weight on his hind feet, which he plants very far forward in his stride. With a weak tendon behind he would be as helpless as a screw propeller without blades. He will certainly not be sent for the Cham-plon Stakes on Saturday.
